OZZ launches “Story of OZZ – banks are people too.”
Story illustrates how tragedy creates collaborative storytelling forum

Winnipeg, Canada – OZZ media corp, a mobile broadcaster and producer of the OZZ media network, is excited to introduce the “Story of OZZ – banks are people too.” This short narrative illustrates how tragedy created the OZZ media network, the company’s storytelling forum that moves ideas forward. Collaborators promote specific products and share philosophies with the world.

The Story of OZZ – banks are people too, tells of the real story of a bank that robbed an award-winning restaurant on the west coast of Canada. The story illustrates how perseverance and truth can be shared in creative ways...

THE STORY OF OZZ
Banks are People too.
Written by John Pineau, MCP for www.OZZmediacorp.com

OZZ began by writing a fiction, a story about a guy robbed by a Bank.

This is the real story.

In the Beginning

I’ve often wondered why we’re put here, if each of us has some higher purpose to serve, if our failures are lessons to be learned that prepare us for some greater existence after we move on. But when it really comes down to it, I can’t subscribe to that theory, not totally anyway. I’m too impatient. Who wants to wait until his last breath before finding out if there really is a pay off for life’s disappoints? No thank you. I’m getting it done this time around...

Mine is a bizarre story that parallels a lot of the things going on in the world right now. Normally the guy robs the Bank, like a John Dillinger kind of thing. But this was the opposite. A Bank robbed me, and based on the news reports we’re all seeing, I’m not the only one....
